Introduction :-

- Skill-based training is crucial because our economic development depends on it.
- Importance of skill development in college. The skill development process helps students think beyond grades. It empowers them to utilize their abilities, develop real-life skills, and prepare themselves for a successful career of their choice. Skill-based education also leads to improved employment opportunities, aiding young individuals in earning more. Furthermore, it contributes to economic growth and enhances a nation's overall development.
- Skill-based education empowers students to develop problem-solving strategies and effective communication techniques. It enhances leadership skills as leadership helps them become more philanthropic. Learning skill development enhances leadership skills as it aids them in becoming more compassionate.
- It teaches them to use their skills to organize and motivate their teams, which, in turn, fosters leadership qualities in them.
- This helps students develop creativity, critical thinking, and analytical skills because skill-based education is centered on assessing real-life problems and applying facts.

→ It assists students in becoming independent thinkers and encourages them to plan for their chosen field. Hence, starting skill development through the course is essential.

→ It helps students discover things beyond the pages of their textbooks and encourages them to think independently at a young age and make choices freely. A significant part of the unemployed population consists of highly educated youth who struggle to find employment due to a lack of skills.

→ A skilled individual who lacks knowledge and, therefore, qualification has a potential to enhance their prospects for better employment and a successful career through vocational training in higher education. For this reason, skill-based education is being considered as part of structured programs at the university level.

It will offer students numerous opportunities to acquire skills relevant to various professions alongside general education. This will help students study for a bachelor's degree in various specializations such as science, arts, commerce, medicine, engineering, etc, as well as pursue their personal businesses and careers of choice, providing them with freedom to choose their preferred vocation.

→ Additionally, skill development programs provide practical experience in vocational training, which will equip them for better employment opportunities.

The above-mentioned goals were kept in mind while establishing the skill Development and promotional Cell at the university, which was inaugurated on August 8, 2018.

On this occasion, the college's principal, Dr. R.P. Saini, was present along with eminent professors and external guests, including former Chief of Govindgarh panchayat samiti, Mr. Bhagwan shay Shansil, (Village Head), Police officer, and the manager of OBC Bank.
